Description

A forced change with a quick reaction time! A worldwide backorder on a chip created a need to act and improve our products. The thermocouple used in production has been a Type J since we released the pellet grill, which paired with a very specific component on the board. We designed the new board to eliminate the need for this chip and moved a PT1000 probe.

Corrective Action

Since there are now two probe types used in S-Series pellet grills, prior to replacing the probe in an S-series pellet grill, the type of probe must be verified as they are not interchangeable. To verify the type of probe that your pellet grill was built with, please follow the steps using the following link.
